neither teaches nor suggests all of the claimed subject matter of claim 18 including selecting one of the batch files according to the selected image copy of the operating system; executing the selected batch file to generate an installation file of an application or a patch file of the operating system to the first partition; deactivating the third partition and activating the first partition; and rebooting the computer system to the first partition; and the prior art of record neither teaches nor suggests all of the claimed subject matter of claim 24 including storing bootable files in the third partition and hide the third partition; providing a system recovery function to a basic input/output system; and providing the computer system, including the basic input/output system having the system recovery function, the image copy of the designated operating system, and the batch file, to the customer. Maffezzoni U.S. Patent 6,901,493 boots the computer from the operating system on the second partition and does not have any boot information on the third partition. Denninghoff et al. U.S. Patent 6,754,855 does not deactivate a third partition after a copy of the operating system has been copied to the first partition. Lin U.S. Patent 6,859,925 and Lin U.S. Patent Application Publication 2002/0049966 do not show deactivating the third partition and activating first partition.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
